If you are experiencing any of the following symptoms, stay home and contact your health care provider:

- Fever of 100.4 F or greater, or chills
- Unusual or unexplained cough
- Shortness of breath or difficulty breathing
- Unusual or unexplained fatigue
- Unusual or unexplained muscle or body ache
- Unusual or unexplained headache (different from typical headaches)
- New loss of taste or smell
- Sore throat
- Congestion or runny nose (excludes seasonal allergies)
- Nausea or vomiting
- Diarrhea
- Close contact with anyone symptomatic, diagnosed or quarantined with COVID-19

If you have severe symptoms, including difficulty breathing, seek medical attention or call 911.